

Artificial Intelligence's need for computing power will require the scaling up of data centres over the next decade. Europe's data centre market is heading for a fivefold boom by 2032 and tech giants are seeking out virgin territories with sufficient space to build their new complexes. Reporting by Alina Trabattoni, Italy Correspondent, Montel.

"From 29 July to 26 August, the cumulated net values of cross-border commercial flows between France and its eastern bordering bidding zones (Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy) exceeded 8 GW 35% of the time", it said. Not important? However, Clement Bouilloux, head of Montel Analytics in France, said the cuts were not "so important".

Austria is heavily reliant on Russian gas, with around 80% of its imports still coming from Gazprom. But this supply route could be cut off at the end of December, as Ukraine is unlikely to renew the transit deal that allows Russian gas to flow into Austria.
