How much money does the international community give to Palestinians?

Towards achieving this goal,the international community has provided over US $35 billionto Palestinian areas between 1993 and 2018,with the European Union being the largest donor (Hemmer,2010; World Bank,2018).

Why do we need a clear analytical view of Israeli and Palestinian grievances?

Like few other issues,this dispute triggers unconscious assumptions,biases,and preconceptions even among those tasked with making peace. A clear and dispassionate analytical view of the problem is thus central towards finding policies that sustainably address Israeli and Palestinian grievances.

Is a viable Palestinian state the only option to resolve the conflict?

For the past three decades,the international community has invested in the idea that establishing a viable Palestinian state alongside Israel is the only option to resolve the conflict.
